Lord Tweedsmuir Puts In Busy Day After Late Arrival

Inspection of Naval Barracks Carried Out By Governor-General Today; Luncheon and Reception This Afternoon; Read Lesson at Church Sunday

Regretful Of Delay In Coming

Victoria was host today, for the first time, to His Excellency the Rt. Hon. Baron Tweedsmuir of Elfield, G.C.M.G., C.H., Canada's fifteenth Governor-General, and Lady Tweedsmuir.

The city and Vancouver Island offered its temperate summer weather, its excellent fishing spots and beautiful vacation spots to their Excellencies for a ten-day holiday before their return across Canada to Ottawa.

The viceregal party, after their train was delayed in the British Columbia Interior by slides on the railway, reached Victoria late Saturday night, and are the guests at Government House of Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. E. W. Hamber.

Tomorrow they will motor up-Island.

Today was a busy one for the visitors.

A visit was made this morning to the Royal Canadian Naval Barracks at Esquimalt, which was inspected by His Excellency.

EMPERESS IN DOCK
At the government drydock the Governor-General had the pleasure of seeing one of the big Pacific liners, the R.M.S. Empress of Canada, in dock.

His Excellency was a guest of the Canadian Club for luncheon, and this afternoon, with Lady Tweedsmuir, was honored at a public reception arranged by the provincial government.

Battle Is Raging On Portugal's Frontier

Government Troops Attempting to Break Rebel Front in Estremadura in Bloodiest Fight of Spain's Civil War

Madrid, Aug. 17.—One of the bloodiest battles of Spain's month-old civil war was being fought today in the ancient western province of Estremadura, with 20,000 government troops and militiamen trying to break a rebel blockade along the Portuguese frontier.

The government reported fierce fighting with bayonets, with no quarter shown on either side. Reports that rebels, in taking Badajoz, had executed 1,500 government adherents spurred the government forces into a merciless drive to "exterminate completely" the rebels in the west, authorities said.

POST'S WIDOW TO PLANT CROSS

Associated Press
Fairbanks, Alaska, Aug. 17.—Wiley Post's widow committed herself today to a sorrowful journey along the same sky path her aviator husband and Will Rogers pursued to their deaths on bleak Point Barrow.

The "King of the Arctic," Charles Brower, waited at Barrow for Mrs. Post to come by airplane with Pilot Joe Crosson and five others to plant two iron crosses upon the banks of Tundra River, where Post's monoplane crashed August 15, 1935.

BOARD WILL TOUR CANADA

Veterans' Assistance Commission to Hear Men and Employers

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—The Veterans' Assistance Commission will tour Canada between September 15 and December 1, to interview the local veterans' organizations and employers of labor and hear their representations on what may be done to start schemes for re-employment of veterans, it was announced here today.

A number of possible avenues for the placing of unemployed ex-service men are being investigated and there is a strong hope that they will prove of benefit, the commission said.

It said "there has been a general misconception of the commission's functions." The commission is an investigating body and employment of veterans can be obtained with the assistance of local committees.

The statement proceeds: "A questionnaire has been drafted to be filled in by every veteran of the Great War."

"It is expected the commission will cover the entire Dominion between September 15 and December 1. In the meantime, effective steps are being taken to secure completion of the questionnaire by every veteran in Canada."

Saskatoon, Aug. 17.—The necessity for co-operation between the Federal board of review and the various provincial debt-adjustment boards was stressed today by Hon. T. C. Davis, Saskatchewan's attorney-general, before the first sitting of the board since its reorganization.

LANDON SUFFERS FROM PLEURISY
Estes Park, Colo., Aug. 17.—An attack of muscular pleurisy kept Governor Alf M. Landon confined today to the ranch house near here, where he is vacationing with his family before inaugurating his first campaign tour in the east Thursday.

Although aides reported improvement in a cold the Republican nominee contracted before coming here last week from Topeka, he remained indoors today.

Arab Terror Grows

New Outbreak in Palestine Takes Toll of Eleven Lives

Bomb Is Hurlled

British Military Patrols Were Reinforced Over Week-end

Canadian Press from Havas
Jerusalem, Aug. 17.—British military patrols were reinforced throughout the Holy Land today following a new outbreak of Arab terrorism during the week-end that took a toll of eleven Jewish lives and brought the total number of Jews killed in the racial-economic war to sixty-six.

A Jewish girl was killed and seven other Jews seriously wounded last night when an Arab terrorist crouched in a compartment of a train moving through the grade crossing which traverses the main thoroughfare of the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv and hurled a bomb into the street.

The bomb caused great damage to property.

WANT SAY IN NAMING JUDGE
The intention of launching a move aimed to give the city more jurisdiction in the appointment of police magistrates was announced by Alderman Andrew McGavin today.

The alderman said he would have a resolution embodying that idea drafted for presentation at the City Council's meeting this evening. He will seek endorsement of the council for the scheme which he hopes to have laid before the Union of British Columbia Municipalities at its convention this year.

POWER OF RECOMMENDATION
The proposed resolution Alderman McGavin intended to draft would suggest that the city be given the power to recommend to the government, a certain man or certain men for the post on the grounds that under existing conditions the city is required to pay the full salary of the magistrate for his city duties, but the magistrate is appointed by the government without consideration for any wish of the City Council.

The resolution would also make provision for consultation with the Bar Association regarding possible selection.

It would also seek authority on salary matters. At present the city can secure a change in the stipend given its magistrate only through application for action through the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

The alderman further intended to secure some rights of retirement for the city in the case of an official who became too old for his post.

NEWS STRIKE IS EFFECTIVE
P.I. Fails to Publish Sunday Editions For First Time in Forty Years

Seattle, Aug. 17.—Picket and police lines were increased around the locked Post-Intelligencer building here early today—fifty of an American Newspaper Guild strike—on rumors the newspaper was planning to rush men into the building. No such rush occurred.

The newspaper, a Hearst publication, failed to publish its Sunday editions yesterday, the first time in nearly forty years, officials said.

The number of pickets was not as large as appeared the first day, when the Seattle chapter of the guild called the strike in protest of the discharge of two guild members.

Jonathan Eddy, executive secretary of the National Guild, arrived yesterday from New York City. He conferred with local guild members.

Police arrested a strike picket yesterday when guards inside the building emerged to carry in supplies. The man was released on bail after he was charged with being disorderly.

Their Excellencies At St. Andrew's Service

Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir are shown in the above picture about to enter St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church yesterday to attend the morning service. On arrival at the church they were greeted by a large crowd and the Governor-General smiled and tipped his hat.

Typhoon Sweeps Hongkong Leaving Dead And Wreckage

One Hundred Workmen Killed By Landslide And Many Ships Driven Aground; Threat of Famine on Luzon Island, Philippines

Associated Press
Hongkong, Aug. 17.—One hundred workmen were reported killed and many ships driven aground today during a severe typhoon.

A landslide resulting from the storm buried the workmen alive. Two ships were broken up and the British steamer Sunning, bearing forty passengers was reported waterlogged after being grounded in Junk Bay.

LIGHTHOUSES LEVELED
North coast lighthouses were leveled. The United States coast and geodetic survey ship, Fishhawk, lay on a rock reef at Port San Vicente, a victim of the typhoon. The vessel's Filipino crew and American officers came off safely and were camped on the shore, navy advices said.

The fate of the Dewhee, an unlisted vessel driven ashore on North Luzon coast, was unknown.

Smaller Wheat Crops In Europe

Total Crop, Excluding Russia, Placed at 1,492,000,000 Bushels; Soviet Export Not Expected to Be Large

Associated Press
Washington, Aug. 17.—The smallest wheat crop for three or four years in continental Europe was reported today by the United States Department of Agriculture.

It said the European crop, excluding Russia, would amount to about 1,492,000,000 bushels compared to 1,573,535,000 bushels last year.

Moscow, Aug. 17.—Soviet Russia worked today to complete a wheat harvest ranging from "spotty" to conditions described as a world record for production.

The harvest was 64 per cent completed on August 10, with 142,000,000 acres of grain cut. Experts agreed it was unlikely a great deal of wheat would be available for export.

The Ukrainian Canada collective farm in the Mowtowry district reported yields of forty bushels of winter wheat to the acre, while oats reached ninety bushels per acre. Most of the workers there are Russians who formerly lived in Canada.

The new imperial palace here as well as the emperor's private estates in various parts of the country are included in the decree. Most of Haile Selassie's private property, including the royal jewels and a large sum of money and precious metals, were taken with him into exile.

MISSING FLIER FOUND IN BUSH

Canadian Press
Nashua, N.H., Aug. 17.—Bill Tweed, missing Ontario air service pilot, was found today in the bush about eight miles west of Upper Twin Lakes in this area 200 miles northeast of Port Arthur.

The bodies of Jack Botttrill and James Morden were removed last night from beneath a mass of rock which fell on them Saturday in the Lake Shore mine here, while the body of their companion, Roy Warwick, twenty-five, recovered the night before, was speeding by train to Perth, his home town, for burial.

An inquest and official inquiry will be held.

W. O. Tower, mining inspector for the district, will attend.

Rescue squads had been working with feverish speed since the alarm rang out at 12:40 o'clock Saturday morning. It was not established definitely until the afternoon that all three men were dead.

Miners, heaving rocks out of the way in the steps on the 2,700-foot level of the huge gold mine, came across a trickle of blood seeping through the loose rubble. It led to the body of Warwick, who was but three feet from an exit mainway and safety when struck down by the cave-in, caused by a rockburst.

Botttrill's body was first taken from the slope last night. It was lowered to the main level of the drift and thence to the hoist and the first-aid station. It was found about 7:15 o'clock. Morden's body was removed an hour later.

There was no crowd at the mine when the bodies were brought out. Friends and relatives of the dead men were notified of the discovery by telephone. They learned with relief that the bodies were not so badly mutilated as had been anticipated in view of the size of the fall.

Interest Cut On Irrigation Loans
The interest rate on upward of $3,000,000 owed the provincial government by irrigation districts in the Okanagan and B.C. interior generally was reduced from 6 to 4½ per cent today.

The formal order sets out a readjustment of payments due by the irrigation districts to conform with the reduction in interest which has been carried out generally on all deferred payments owing to the government.

The reduction in payments to the treasury amounts to about $145,000 per year.

Polling Today Terminates Bitterest Fight In the History of Quebec, Noted For Its Deep Political Feeling; Premier Godbout, Liberal Leader and His Defending Liberals Find Strong Opposition In Maurice Duplessis and His "Union Nationale" Group

Quebec, Aug. 17.—This province votes today. Its immediate political future is determined now, written in the minds of 600,000 men who will scrawl an "X" on a ballot-paper and drop it through the top of a tin box.

But not till tonight will anyone know at what mass conclusion 600,000 individual ideas have arrived. When the counting begins, the province will be able to trace a trend toward Premier Adelard Godbout and his defending Liberals, or Maurice Duplessis and his assaulting Opposition.

The campaign that closed last night—Sunday political meetings are a commonplace in Quebec—was one of the bitterest in the history of a province noted for its deep political feeling.

On the one hand the city-dweller and the soil-billing habitant found a new embodiment of the Liberalism toward which they have looked for government for forty years. On the other they had a Union party, Conservatives and insurgent Liberals under Duplessis, lifting a banner emblazoned "Union Nationale."

"Keep the farmers on the farms" has been the watchword of the Liberal Party throughout the campaign, and aid for the farmer in the shape of bonuses and subsidies is the main plank of its platform.

"Reform," is the cry of Union Nationale.

Though the Duplessis party has pledged itself to farm credits administered by the province, it has gone on record as opposed to "spoon-fed agriculture," and despite the profession of its leader, has declared for "an end to government by lawyers."

MANY CANDIDATES
Quebec, Aug. 17.—Tumult of Quebec's provincial election campaign died away last night after one final crescendo of oratorical appeal to the voters who today will elect a Legislative Assembly.

The 206 candidates for the ninety Legislative seats closed their campaign with meetings from one end of the province to the other.

Premier Godbout, to whom Hon. L. A. Taschereau handed over leadership of the Liberal administration which had ruled the province for forty years, seeks endorsement of his government and its revised programme.

Maurice Duplessis and his Union Nationale, composed of Conservatives and former Action Libérale Nationale adherents, have asked the electorate to turn out the Liberals and give Union Nationale the mandate.

Union Nationale has a full complement of ninety candidates in the field. Liberals have only eighty-eight, for they did not oppose two independent candidates known to be (Turn to Page 2, Col. 5)

Fear Race To Arm Fighting Spaniards

Mines at Glace Bay Operating

Canadian Press
Glace Bay, N.S., Aug. 17.—The Glace Bay coal miners' strike, which tied up production in five pits where 4,000 men joined a week-long walk-out, had only 1,400 followers today as miners in all Glace Bay collieries except No. 2—"the big producer"—answered the work whistles this morning.

The No. 2 workers at a meeting yesterday elected to disregard a settlement agreement.

They came on the H.M.C.S. Skeena from Vancouver where they embarked at 5.40 p.m., docking at the Esquimaux Naval Dock at 9.30 o'clock.

Lieutenant-governor Hamer, Commander C. T. Beard, R.C.N., and M. D. Fairbairn, the Lieutenant-Governor's private secretary, met the party at the destroyer.

The vice-regal visitors were immediately taken to Government House where Their Excellencies met Premier Pattullo and members of the cabinet who were attending a dinner party there.

Lord Tweedsmuir expressed great regret that his train had been delayed and that he had been unable to be here in time for the reception planned on Saturday afternoon.

He was extremely sorry to think that people who had not received information of the cancellation of the reception, had gone to the Legislative Buildings expecting to meet him.

He would be only too glad to attend the reception today, for which plans were made immediately.

On the arrival of the party at Government House Saturday night they were greeted by Piper Alexander Wallace of the Canadian Scottish Regiment. The Governor-General complimented him for his playing.

South Africa Police Heads Charged With Miscarriage of Justice

Canadian Press
Johannesburg, South Africa, Aug. 17.—Captain J. Kane, commander of the Maritzburg police, today turned evidence on behalf of the Crown after a public prosecutor had intimidated the Attorney-General had declined to prosecute him on charges of defrauding the ends of justice.

The arrest of Kane and several other high police officials in April caused a sensation in the Dominion. The arrests followed the trial of Detective-Sergeant Opperman, convicted of giving false evidence which sent a number of innocent persons to prison.

The charge against Kane was withdrawn today and he was discharged. Those still committed to trial on charges of defrauding the ends of justice, bribery and conspiring to bribe Col. A. A. Cilliers, head of the railway police, Detective-Sergeant Vannie Kerk, Samuel Sandig and his son, Archie, who are owners of a Johannesburg liquor store, and Lazarus Sandig, Johannesburg manufacturer.

It is alleged the accused assisted or incited two others to give false evidence against a rival liquor store keeper, causing his unjust conviction.

French Hopes For Neutrality Negotiations Pinned on British Proposals to Ban All Plane Export

Associated Press
Paris, Aug. 17.—Shipment of civil airplanes to Spain from Great Britain led today to French fears of a breakdown in neutrality negotiations and the start of a race between foreign powers to arm fighting Spaniards.

French hopes for success of the neutrality negotiations appeared pinned on a London Foreign Office communiqué, which indicated the exportation of civil planes might soon be on the same basis as war supplies, requiring the approval of the Foreign Office, the Board of Trade, the Admiralty or War Office.

London's offer to spread the neutrality agreement, by asking Premier Mussolini to hasten his reply to the proposals inaugurated by France was announced last night as two British-owned Fokkers crashed in France en route to the Iberian Peninsula.

of the prisoners held aboard two steamers in the Bay of Biscay harbor. Frontier reports said the executions had begun.

The battleship Espana directed heavy fire against Port Guadalupe but the government stronghold had not been hit after a one-and-a-half-hour bombardment.

The shelling of Guadalupe subsided early in the afternoon, after a two-and-a-half-hour assault, and two persons who were wounded when a bomb fell on a farm at Puentebarria were the only known casualties.

Government leaders, encouraged by what they said was the failure of the rebels to attack by land, indicated they were ready for an early counter-offensive.

This week, they stated, "would be decisive."

Refugees arriving in increasing numbers from Irun and San Sebastian said that three rebel ships, Espana, Velasco and Almirante Cervera, were backing back and forth between San Sebastian and Cap de Figueira, the limit of French territorial waters.

Some of the fleeing Spaniards, who numbered 300, said two government planes from the airbase at San Sebastian had succeeded in bombing the rebel warships, but this could not be confirmed.

The guns of the fort did not reply at once and were faced with the dilemma of submitting to rebel fire or shelling the rebel warships at the risk of dropping projectiles on French territory across the bay.

The Fascist warships were believed to be purposely avoiding direct hits on the fort. There were about 1,200 hostages held at Irun and 700 at San Sebastian.

Dispatches from Bilbao said the rebel destroyers Velasco and Santurri starting fires there but causing no casualties.

The bombardment apparently was intended chiefly to demoralize the government defenders.

Madrid, Aug. 17.—Spanish Government troops captured Fascist rebels barricaded in the Gijon jail after stiff fighting today and began a "victory march" across the city of Mollera.

Three columns of the Socialist government army landed at Mollera, rebel stronghold in the Mediterranean, and captured several towns. Citizens greeted the army and shouts of "Long live the republic," the loyalists asserted.

Capture of Palma, the capital, was the objective in the new offensive and a fierce battle was predicted there soon.

In northeastern Huesca province the government announced capture of the towns of Alberbajo, Teller and San Daniel.

Battles raged through southwestern Badajoz province, where the government sought desperately to stem the rebel march toward Madrid.

Harried by communist clamor for a "baby Russia," the Madrid government seized millions of dollars from church treasuries.

Authorities said more than 200,000,000 pesetas (nominally $26,200,000) in currency, gold, jewels and negotiable securities were taken from a bank vault of the Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul.

A total of 500,000 pesetas in negotiable wealth was taken from nuns and priests attempting to flee the country.

Growing Communist unrest was apparent, reliable sources indicated. "Direct, brutal, violent" actions to stop the revolt was demanded by dissatisfied anarchists.

THREE CONVICTED OF EXTORTION

New York, Aug. 17.—Three men were convicted today of having extorted $1,800 from Harry L. Bannister, former husband of the actress, Ann Harding, incident to the legal fight between the two over custody of their child.

The three were Jerome A. Jacobs, forty-eight, an attorney; Raymond Derrington, thirty-nine, and Harry Hechler, sixty-three.

The money was alleged to have been obtained in November, 1934, by threats of impugning a bad character to Bannister in connection with his efforts to obtain custody of his daughter.

SHIP STOPPED BY SUBMARINE

Associated Press
Boston, Aug. 17.—The master of the American Export liner Exambion, arriving today from Mediterranean ports, reported his boat had been boarded at sea August 8 by Spanish loyalist officers from a submarine which first fired a shot across the freighter's bows to halt her.

Capt. W. W. Kuhne said the government submarine followed his vessel for two hours in the darkness off Cape de Gata, off the Spanish coast, apparently in the belief she was a rebel vessel, or carrying fleeing instructionists from the civil war.

After he had assured the submarine's officers of his neutrality and his papers had been examined, Capt. Kuhne related, he was allowed to proceed.

French hopes for success of the neutrality negotiations appeared pinned on a London Foreign Office communiqué, which indicated the exportation of civil planes might soon be on the same basis as war supplies, requiring the approval of the Foreign Office, the Board of Trade, the Admiralty or War Office.

Harried by communist clamor for a "baby Russia," the Madrid government seized millions of dollars from church treasuries.

Authorities said more than 200,000,000 pesetas (nominally $26,200,000) in currency, gold, jewels and negotiable securities were taken from a bank vault of the Sisters of St. Vincent de Paul.

A total of 500,000 pesetas in negotiable wealth was taken from nuns and priests attempting to flee the country.

Growing Communist unrest was apparent, reliable sources indicated. "Direct, brutal, violent" actions to stop the revolt was demanded by dissatisfied anarchists.

THREE CONVICTED OF EXTORTION

New York, Aug. 17.—Three men were convicted today of having extorted $1,800 from Harry L. Bannister, former husband of the actress, Ann Harding, incident to the legal fight between the two over custody of their child.

The three were Jerome A. Jacobs, forty-eight, an attorney; Raymond Derrington, thirty-nine, and Harry Hechler, sixty-three.

The money was alleged to have been obtained in November, 1934, by threats of impugning a bad character to Bannister in connection with his efforts to obtain custody of his daughter.

REACTION TO SPEECH SEEN

Roosevelt's Pledge to Defend
"Our Neighborhood"
Causes Comment

Washington, Aug. 17.—President Roosevelt's assertion in his Chatauqua speech that "We can and will defend ourselves and defend our neighborhood," drew varied reaction here in diplomatic and peace society quarters.

In formal comment upon the President's address, spokesmen for the National Council for Prevention of War and the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom mixed praise of his expressed hatred for war with his stand on neutrality with criticism of the pledge to defend "our neighborhood."

There was much discussion in diplomatic circles as to how the President's statement compared with the warning given by President Monroe a little more than a hundred years ago against further efforts by European powers to expand in this hemisphere.

Interest in it was heightened by the approach of the All-American Conference at Buenos Aires, summoned some time ago at Roosevelt's instigation, to consider means of perfecting the peace machinery of the American continents.

Officials of the International League for Peace and Freedom addressed an open letter to the President—thanking him for "support on neutrality, the reciprocal trade agreements and his own personal hatred for war," but adding:

"It is our conviction also that many taxpayers will be shocked to learn that their money is being spent for a military establishment large enough to police all the Americas."

The Monroe Doctrine, with which the Roosevelt statement was compared by some, stated that "The American Continent, by the free and independent condition which they have assumed and maintained, are henceforth not to be considered as subjects" for further expansionist aims of European powers.

friendly to the administration. There are twelve Independent Liberals and four Independent Union Nationale candidates. Conservatives have two official candidates and one Independent Conservative. Three candidates describe themselves merely as "Independent."

Communists put three men in the fight, Labor and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation one each. The other man is running as a "people's candidate."

DIFFERENT PICTURE
The election picture is far different from that presented last November, 25, when Hon. L. A. Taschereau's Liberal government was sustained by a narrow majority.

Communists put three men in the fight, Labor and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation one each. The other man is running as a "people's candidate."

On the opposition side of the House Conservative Union Nationale and twenty-six members of the Liberal Nationalists, a group of insurgent Liberals led by Paul Gouin. Mr. Duplessis, by terms of the alliance, was official leader of the united opposition of forty-two.

During the present campaign Union Nationalists charged the Liberal government had misled the electorate during the budget debate because they feared further revelations of the House's public accounts committee inquiry into government departments.

The government charged the opposition with causing dissolution through refusing to vote to carry on ordinary government business.

Paul Gouin suddenly parted company with Maurice Duplessis, declaring the Conservative leader had failed to keep certain terms of their articles of alliance. Later he announced the Action Libérale Nationale would not participate in the election and he himself would not run for re-election in L'Assomption.

At a meeting at Sherbrooke, however, twenty-two Action Libérale Nationale members of the last House declared they would continue with Mr. Duplessis. Conservatives and former Action Libérale Nationale members lost their identity under the Union Nationale standard.

Union Nationalists speakers have maintained the old Taschereau regime still rules the province but Premier Godbout and his candidates have denied any attachment to the former government.

General prosperity, Premier Godbout has said, depends on prosperity in agriculture and the Liberal programme promises substantial aid to the farmer.

Union Nationale, said Mr. Duplessis, would call a session immediately if elected. Reforms would be instituted at once, and the public accounts committee probe of government departments would proceed in thorough fashion.

The public accounts inquiry has played a prominent part in the campaign. The government appointed two Superior Court judges as a Royal Commission to replace the Legislature's committee in the inquiry. Union Nationale rejected the commission flatly and warned the commission would be dissolved if they got into power.

Liberals countered with a promise the public accounts committee would continue if Union Nationale insisted, but the Royal Commission would conduct a parallel probe.

Liberals charged Union Nationale with seeking aims. Mr. Duplessis and his colleagues vehemently denied any such tendencies.

Near the close of the campaign Mr. Gouin issued a statement naming forty-three candidates he considered the "best men" in the field. His list included both Premier Godbout and Mr. Duplessis.

The Timber Development Association was largely an educational organization, said Mr. Boulton. It supplied information to architects, builders and government departments, including the Royal Air Force and Woolwich Arsenal.

All three lumbermen spoke of the quality of British Columbia lumber and the excellent manner in which it fulfilled requirements. None found that there was any criticism to be made of the logging system in the province, which they considered the only one adapted to the conditions.

Other members of the lumber group in the inspectional party are: H. Sinclair Buckland of Lamb Bros. timber importers, Liverpool; C. B. Gabriel Jr. of Gabriel, Wade & English, timber merchants, London; H. Mellor-Smith of Mellor-Smith & Co., London; Harold Lees of Lamb Bros. Ltd., Liverpool; Mrs. Hemmingsway, director of Scentibury & Hemmingsway Ltd., London; J. W. Taylor of Page & Taylor, timber and door importers Preston Lancashire and E. H. Boulton technical director of the Timber Development Association of the United Kingdom.

R. Douglas Ross British Columbia timber commissioner in Great Britain is traveling with the party.

Ernest C. Manning chief forester of British Columbia this morning met the lumbermen and made arrangements for visits to various island lumber camps.

The tourist section of the inspectional group arrived in Canada one week ahead of the lumbermen, and has made a comprehensive visit to many of the province's scenic beauties of the mainland, including the Okanagan fruit growing area.

Today the party is visiting Duncan and Cowichan and lunching at the Fairbridge Farm School. The party will return to Victoria this evening by way of Butchart's Gardens.

The personnel of the tourist party is as follows: Mrs. B. Baldwin, Witham, Sussex; Miss A. A. Breckenridge, Glasgow; Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Brerley, Chislehurst, Kent; Miss H. Edmonstone, Colwyn Bay, N. SOVIET ROOTS OUT PLOTTERS

Mass Meetings Demand Severe Sentences For 16 Arrested Trotsky Adherents

Associated Press

Moscow, Aug. 17.—A nation-wide drive to root out anti-revolutionary and sympathizers and followers of Leon Trotsky and Gregory Zinovieff began today with demands from all parts of the Soviet Union for the extreme penalty for sixteen arrested conspirators.

"Show no leniency—no mercy for the traitors—no demerit in the severest sentence—completely root out the poisonous reptiles"—these were some of the slogans used at mass meetings which adopted resolutions asking the courts to show no clemency.

Zinovieff and Leon Kamenef, with fourteen others, are accused of an anti-government plot directed against Dictator Joseph Stalin. The exiled Trotsky was named as the actual leader of the conspiracy.

A general tightening-up everywhere began as Soviet workers pledged themselves to great vigilance against counter-revolutionaries and a purge of party oppositionists.

The press reported the discovery of numerous Trotskyites in high industrial and party positions.

In one instance, the director of a flax factory at Smolensk was expelled.

Terrorists were reported discovered in the Kharkov locomotive factory and in other plants, and women plotters were reported active in a Leningrad tobacco plant.

There appeared no doubt most, if not all, the sixteen persons under arrest here would be executed.

Details of the alleged plot are not known. The press charges the plan was to kill Stalin and others.

Aberhart Hits Back at Critics

Alberta Premier Likens Chambers of Commerce to Small Boys

Canadian Press

Calgary, Aug. 17.—Premier Aberhart referred briefly in his regular address to the Calgary Prophetic Bible Institute yesterday to the appeal of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce to the Dominion Government that circulation of prosperity certificates be stopped.

"It beats me," he remarked, "that these chambers of commerce and boards of trade will try to block a movement that helps people in distress."

"As these chambers and boards constitute a very small number of citizens they, like small boys, should be seen and not heard."

DIVIDEND REGISTRATION
Calgary, Aug. 17.—The present registration stage of social credit in Alberta "is the real test of the movement," Premier Aberhart told the Prophetic Bible Institute here today, and urged all citizens to take advantage of the "opportunity that is being given you now."

"The question must be answered," the Premier said, "not by Ontario or Quebec, not by the United States or Great Britain, not by newspapers or by boards of trade or chambers of commerce, not even by the wholesalers, but by bona fide citizens of Alberta."

"The question is: Do you wish to co-operate in a live-and-let-live policy, or do you want a 'dog-eat-dog' or 'let the devil take the hindmost' scheme?"

We asked for eighteen months to establish social credit," Mr. Aberhart said. "The individual suffering of our people goaded us into action. We prepared the equipment for action in eleven months, instead of eighteen. Present conditions," he added, "have driven us forward in mad desperation."

"Now we have landed, six months sooner, than we expected," the Premier continued.

Mr. Aberhart explained registration, now under way, and the covenants by which citizens agree to co-operate with the government.

"Will our people stand the test?" he asked. "The registration will tell us. If you fail us, I'll be sorry. I shall not be able to keep my promise."

He termed "eyewash" reports that farmers and wage earners, in signing the covenants, must agree to give 50 per cent of their crops or wages to the government. "Shame on you for believing that," the Premier said. "All we ask is please don't give everything to the financiers."

JAPAN FOR CO-OPERATION

Hope Expressed For Friendly Understanding With Great Britain

Associated Press

Tokio, Aug. 17.—Advocates of closer Anglo-Japanese co-operation are taking advantage of recent favorable incidents to further their cause.

Mayor Ushizuka of Tokio, recently expressed pleasure over Great Britain's withdrawal of her candidacy for the next Olympic Games in favor of Japan and proceeded to voice regret that there was no longer an Anglo-Japanese alliance.

TO MAINTAIN BALANCE

The people of Japan hoped that the two empires would co-operate harmoniously as world leaders in maintaining political balance in the Far East, thus contributing to preservation of world peace.

Mayor Ushizuka said he wished to thank Canada for voting for Tokio as a candidate for the 1940 Olympics.

Recently there has been considerable discussion in prominent Japanese newspapers of desirability of Anglo-Japanese co-operation. It is understood in authoritative quarters that the Japanese Government instructed S. Yoshida, the new ambassador to the Court of St. James, to devote himself to this end.

A stronger trend in Japan for friendlier relations with Great Britain was discerned by Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, economic adviser to the British Government, who recently visited here.

The Asahi, one of Tokio's leading newspapers, points out in a recent editorial that Anglo-Japanese co-operation has many influential advocates, even though it may not be a decisive trend in Japan's diplomatic policy.

"We should not jump to the conclusion," The Asahi says, "that Anglo-Japanese co-operation would be a means of coping with other countries, and it is not wise in the present world conditions for all nations, or Japan at least, to try to secure themselves through alliances offensive or defensive."

Nevertheless, the paper says, co-operation with Britain would be an aid to Japan in readjusting her relations with other countries having interests in the Far East. The position of Japan, as the stabilizing force in the Far East, would be strengthened by friendship with Britain, the paper contends.

The 461,000,000 inhabitants of Europe speak 121 languages.

Canadians Loyal, Says Ferguson

Canadian Press

Will Discuss Farm Problems

Associated Press

Sydney, Australia, Aug. 17.—Plans were being made today for a delegation of Australian farmers to visit British Columbia and Pacific Coast states next year with a view to arranging an exchange of views between farmers of the Antipodes and America.

E. G. Ham, organizer of the tour, pointed out experience proved the great value of interchanges of ideas among agriculturists. Australia and the Pacific Coast of America had many things in common and all manner of similar problems, he said.

SIR H. LYTTON FAMED FIGURE

Late Actor Rose From Obscurity To Top of His Profession

Associated Press

London, Aug. 17.—Sir Henry Lytton, last of the old Savoyards, who died at his home Saturday, spent more than a half century singing a wide variety of roles in Gilbert and Sullivan operettas.

His appearances with the D'Oyly Carte Company, of which he was a member during most of his career, brought him fame as one of the finest light opera singers ever to play the Savoy operettas. He appeared in the productions more than 15,000 times and 5,000 performances of "The Mikado" alone.

Like the tragic jester in "Yeoman of the Guard," Sir Henry remembered the hard times of his youth when he shared a barren London attic and near-starvation with his wife and infant child.

He ran away from school when he was seventeen years old to marry Louie Henry after seeing her play Gilbert and Sullivan in a London theatre. They were married after a whirlwind courtship while Lytton, concealing his romance from his masters, was still a student at St. Mark's College, Chelsea.

Sir Henry and Lady Lytton celebrated their golden wedding anniversary and his fiftieth year in the theatre in 1934.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, Henry Lytton Jr., who followed his father in the theatre.

He was knighted in 1930.

VIMY PILGRIMS DISBANDED

Ottawa, Aug. 17.—Vimy pilgrims were officially disbanded here following a ceremony on Parliament Hill in which Hon. Ian Mackenzie, Minister of Defence, took part.

Many of the 6,000 who formed the "twenty years after" expedition to France, and members of the permanent force participated in the ceremony patterned after the one on Vimy Ridge exactly three weeks ago.

The Royal Canadian Horse Artillery band and the pipe band composed of pipers from every Highland unit in Canada presented a musical programme identical with that they played at Vimy.

In his farewell address, Mr. Mackenzie welcomed the pilgrims home

"It was only five weeks ago that I had the pleasure of meeting you for the first time in Montreal on the occasion of your embarking overseas," the minister said. "At that time I pointed out that you were crossing the seas representing not any single unit but the entire Dominion of Canada—that the best traditions of Canada were in your keeping... and now you are back home again and this your last parade together. From here you will return to various parts of Canada, to your various vocations, civil and military."

Boy Hiked To Find Father Dead

North Bay, Ont., Aug. 17.—Lack of funds forcing him to "hitchhike" his way north, a son of James Morden, one of the three miners killed in a fall of rock at Kirkland Lake Saturday, arrived here yesterday from Trenton, near Belleville.

The boy said he did not know definitely that his father was dead until he reached here. His mother had telegraphed him from Kirkland Lake saying "Dad badly hurt in mine."

City police aided the boy in obtaining transportation to Kirkland Lake.

The Products of Our Forests

BRITISH COLUMBIA'S LUMBER INDUSTRY seems to be enjoying a strong export demand in all markets, with the single exception of Japan, and continued high prices in spite of keen competition in overseas trade, are the keynote to what is being described as the present satisfactory situation.

In June, for example, Vancouver exports established a new high record of 109,000,000 feet. As a result of the continued interest in wooden houses in Great Britain it is expected that 1936 exports to the United Kingdom will exceed those of last year. For the first five months of the year an increase of 17,000,000 feet over the same period in 1935 was recorded.

So far as other empire trade is concerned, business with Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, the British West Indies and the South Sea Islands have been considered very satisfactory. "If it were easier to arrange credits with China," one economist says, "there is no doubt that there would be larger orders from that market, as the development of the interior of China is proceeding at an astonishing rate in spite of disturbed political conditions. Timber products now constitute Canada's leading export to China. Conditions in Japan are unsettled at the present moment and business is more or less marking time. While imports by the United States have not been up to the quota established, they have been more than satisfactory when one considers the low level of lumber consumption in that market. Now that new building is beginning to assume larger proportions, the outlook in that market may be considered favorable."

In eastern Canada lumbering conditions, we are told, have been generally satisfactory. As a result of the small cut last winter, sawing operations will be completed earlier than last year. Export shipments to Great Britain continue in moderate volume, but the demand from the United States is still quiet. Total shipments of hemlock during the twelve months ended May 31, 1936, amounted to 124,274,000 feet, a substantial increase over the total of 96,804,000 feet reported for the previous year. Shipments of spruce for the same period declined to 290,973,000 feet from the total of 370,289,000 feet reported for the year ended May 31, 1935.

Incidentally, Russian lumber, according to Mr. E. B. Monkhouse, president of the Timber Trades Federation of the United Kingdom, who is now a visitor here, "is no longer the bogey to be feared by British Columbia sawmill operators." A year or so ago the competition of cheaply-produced Russian lumber, which for generations had been purchased in huge volume by old-line British import houses, constituted the greatest threat to British Columbia lumbermen in developing what has proved to be their best overseas market. "You don't have to worry about Russia now," says Mr. Monkhouse, who adds that prospects for Canada in the British market are extremely encouraging.

The United Kingdom, of course, will continue to purchase the bulk of her lumber requirements from Russia and northern European countries. Specifications, price, and geographical considerations naturally have to be taken into account. But it is gratifying to learn that Britain is at long last realizing that British Columbia can fill still larger orders for manufactured timber in the Old Country market.

Playing With Fire

THE EXTRAORDINARY MIXTURE of news coming out of Spain these days scarcely permits of intelligent discussion of the march of events in that unhappy country. Government forces and insurgent forces alike are daily claiming victories in various parts of the republic. What does stand out quite clearly, however, is the patent fact that a very great deal of blood is being spilled—accompanied by much property damage.

Developments over the week-end emphasize the difficulty the major powers are experiencing in coming to a complete and effective "hands-off" policy. The British press is described as nervous. For example, The News-Chronicle and The Daily Herald both demand that no more British civil planes shall be allowed to leave for Spain. The Herald declares the government's pious "we have no power to prevent it," is all stuff and nonsense. "Stop the planes," echoes The News-Chronicle. "A hint to manufacturers would suffice. They are far too dependent on Air Ministry orders to act in defiance of the government's known wishes." The Herald goes further. "Unless," it says, "Italy and Germany enforce at once an all-round embargo, the French and British governments are bound in honor to supply the Spanish Government with such material as it may require."

Today's intimation from London is that the Air Ministry, the Board of Trade, and the Customs department are using pressure to see that no more British civil airplanes go to Spain. Measures that have been taken are to be applied to such craft as are flown from England to continental airports, there to be sold to agents of either one side or the other in the conflict now raging. At present all a pilot needs to secure a clearance for some destination. After that the government is not concerned with the ultimate fate of the airplane.

Germany and Italy seem to be the two countries which are delaying effective action. If they are genuinely desirous of preventing the Spanish mess from spilling over into the international field they would join Britain and France in a downright "hands off" agreement. Winking at the supply of arms, no matter in what form, coupled with a general daily-dallying policy, will mean trouble and consequences that might easily result in another major conflagration.

"Cricket Week"

UNDER IDEAL WEATHER CONDITIONS "Cricket Week," arranged by the Victoria Cricket Club, got under way today at Macdonald Park with the initial fixture between a local eleven and the Vancouver Juniors. For the next five days the Victoria club will act as hosts for out-of-town teams. These will include an eleven from H.M.S. Apollo, the Cowichan district, and others from the mainland.

The Victoria Cricket Club is to be congratulated upon its initiative in staging what unquestionably will be a thoroughly enjoyable week, both for those who "wield the willow" and the hundreds of cricket devotees in this community. The club is fortunate, moreover, in having for these matches such an excellent pitch as that at Macdonald Park. The Times extends a cordial welcome to the visiting players.

It Can Do No Good

MR. DAVID LLOYD GEORGE, Great Britain's wartime Prime Minister, has just completed his final volume of memoirs, tomes in which he has used up many words in criticism of British military leadership during the years 1914 to 1918. Lord Haig has been the chief target of the former Premier's verbal attack and for many weeks a "letters-to-the-editor" epidemic raged in Britain and in other countries.

On balance, perhaps, Mr. Lloyd George's strictures have had as many supporters as critics. The non-military mind naturally has found it difficult to pass judgment. It has had to be left for the most part to the experts. The untutored remember, however, that it was to Mr. George that the British people looked for encouragement in the dark days of the great conflict. He did not pose as a superman. He hired the best brains of the country to help him to "see it through."

Most people, of course, are wondering why many prominent men of the war days continue to rake over the ashes of the world's most ghastly and costly conflagration. Many of these post-war writings naturally have brought considerable revenue to their authors; but no matter what is said at this stage will make one iota of difference. What has been done can not be undone. Nor is it likely that any views on strategy, and so on, that may be expressed will have very much bearing on modern tactics in view of the scientific developments in the fighting business which have taken place in the last few years.

A Modern Miracle—working Priest

THE RECENT DEATH OF PROF. J. A. Nieuwland, C.S.C., noted Notre Dame chemist, brings to a close the brilliant career of the man who made synthetic rubber possible. While Father Nieuwland never, himself, produced synthetic rubber, his fundamental researches on vinyl acetylene were seized upon by eager industrial chemists of the Du Pont Company and quickly turned into the amazing material which rivals natural rubber.

Vinyl acetylene, best known perhaps as the compound used as the old familiar automobile headlight gas of pre-electric days, was a relatively rare and costly material until Father Nieuwland discovered how to make it in large quantities at comparatively low cost. Applied chemistry did the rest and turned out Du Prene which has the properties of rubber but is not rubber. In many places throughout industry Du Prene is replacing natural rubber, despite its higher price, because of its resistance to attack by hot oils and greases.

Father Nieuwland's vinyl acetylene, moreover, has found wide application in fabrication of the gleaming plastics now being used in a great variety of places. The vinyl resins, as they are called, are among the newest newcomers in chemical compounds which jointly are replacing the old standbys—hard rubber, celluloid and bakelite—in many uses.

Notes

One cure for that sleepy feeling these warm afternoons seems to be quitting time.

Bridge Club: A social organization that includes a few neighbors and hurts the feelings of the others.

It is reported that Colonel Lindbergh in Berlin the other day did not speak to Reichsfuehrer Hitler, though he was within hearing distance.

Italian papers fear to mention Il Duce's age, but it is just putting off the inevitable. Eventually he will begin wondering about those wrinkles.

More than twice as many children under fifteen years are killed by accidents as by three common communicable diseases, measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria. This fact emerges in a study of fatal childhood accidents which has been undertaken by the U.S. Public Health Service. For children under one year of age, mechanical suffocation leads the list of fatal accidents. At one and two years burns caused most fatal accidents. Automobile accidents and burns lead up to fifteen years, automobile accidents and also outnumber deaths from the three diseases, measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria. The study was limited to the year 1930, the most recent year for which accurate population enumerations exist.

Loose Ends

Poor Henry was a fine father—And all his daughters were successful in business—Mr. Beak suffers on account of his wife's English friends—And Mr. McGee wants to wash the dishes.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

POOR HENRY

AND HOW," said the Fraser Valley man, "is old Henry Oxford?"

"Ah, poor Henry," said the Saanich man. "He died in the spring."

"A fine type. He has about a hundred daughters hereabouts."

"Yes, their butternut tree was always over 4.7."

"His son," said the Fraser Valley man, "is at Ladder now, but he doesn't amount to much. His daughters won't equal Henry's. They average around 4.4 butternut."

"Too bad," said the Saanich man. "The breeding has gone down all right. Ah, Henry had a breeding! You can talk all you like about size and shape, but it's breeding that tells every time. Blood—that's the thing. Poor old Henry."

"I guess Henry was the best Jersey bull west of Winnipeg."

I followed these authorities about the Saanich dairy farm meekly, hardly understanding their lingo. These fellows knew every pedigreed bull west of the Rockies and many east of them. They knew all his son's daughters, grandsons and granddaughters to the fourth generation, and the milking capacity and butternut yield of each. They knew far more about the genealogy of their cattle than the heredity of their own children. They knew practically nothing of their own ancestors, but they had their bulls and cows traced back ten generations.

A Saanich dairy farm is thus an inspiring thing. There, in the whitewashed barns, you find the only true aristocracy of this country, the only reliable breeding, the real gentility; for, while our human strain is bred casually, without any plan whatever, these superb creatures are planned ahead three or four generations and are practically perfect when they arrive. You never know what your daughter will amount to; very likely she will elope with an ice-man and your family tree will have an admixture of ice man's blood from then on. But footling like that happens on a Saanich Jersey farm. The lives of daughters, granddaughters and great-granddaughters are planned years before their birth to the last ounce of butternut. Their husbands are chosen scientifically and the matrimony of their children is all arranged on a chart.

That is why we, within our sphere, are generally failures and in the mean, make a sorry mess of all our civilization; whereas there is hardly a failure among all the Jerseys of Saanich. They do their job because they are bred for it. We just stagger along, born incompetents. And there isn't a lady among us with the breeding of a Saanich Jersey cow. That is why a Jersey cow always looks down her nose at you.

NO HIPS

MR. BEAK almost died of heat prostration this week on account of his principles; or rather, his wife's. His principles, or his wife's, compel him to wear a sweater in the warmest weather, and it almost proved fatal at the week-end.

"The trouble," said Mr. Beak, "is that I have no 'hips' to speak of. And that means I can't wear a belt. And the wife she won't 'ear of me wearin' 'braces without a sweater to cover 'em up on account of she's so 'lightoned, because 'er family in England once knew a lord or something. I dunno, but it's tough this weather when you ain't got no 'hips and yer wife's family once knew a lord. Well, I'm 'opin' we'll 'ave a early fall."

AFTER THE BALL

YOU CAN NEVER HOPE to match His Worship the Mayor of Vancouver for sheer vitality of thought and for an interest in politics which age cannot wither nor custom stale. Having attacked the Pattullo government in the Legislature until he became a kind of unofficial Leader of the Opposition, the mayor is now out to help elect a supporter of the Pattullo government in Burrard. Burrard, says the mayor, should give the Pattullo government's candidate one of the big, thumping majorities of which only good old Burrard is capable.

This is all very commendable; but the mayor's argument for this programme is unique. He says: Vancouver should wind up its splendid Jubilee celebration with the thrill of a by-election and a thumping majority for the Liberal candidate. It is fine to have a by-election and all Liberal politicians should be eager to give their candidate a thumping majority, but to tell the electors of Burrard to finish up the jolly sports of the Jubilee with a dull chore like politics is a curious anti-climax. It is like turning to washing the dishes when you are all tired and snuggled after the guests have gone home from your party. One fears, somehow, that the electors of Burrard won't enjoy dish washing as much as the inextinguishable mayor.

BUSINESS BAD

YOU TAKE THE PROBLEM of the retail trade. The retail trade, despite all the ballyhoo in the papers, is very bad. I have it from two of the leading merchants of these parts that they never saw business worse. They established a store on the side of the road by our lake yesterday and offered a most attractive stock of unripe green apples, over-ripe wild blackberries, four carrots, the end of a vegetable marrow and two copies of this newspaper, only a week old. The store was attractive, too, a board set up across two stumps, decorated with some pink tissue paper.

But such is the present state of trade, despite the optimistic figures of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, that no one bought from this excellent stock. "One man almost did," said the little girl from next door, "but not quite."

"The trouble was he hadn't any money," said her partner.

So, in the end, one by one, the blackberries and green apples were all eaten by the proprietors and the carrots were fed to Amigo, the retired race horse in the lower field. By the end of the day the retail business at our lake was quite bankrupt. Also, it had a bad pain in its tummy.

WATCH HIM

MR. ABERHART announces that he is going ahead now with Social Credit within Alberta. He will issue his own credit, as the private banks do, despite the British North America Act, and despite the obvious economic fact that if he does it prices are bound to rise and all sorts of disagreeable consequences ensue.

This move of Mr. Aberhart's, if he is really going ahead with it seriously, should be watched with attention. For, regardless of the obvious fact that the thing can't work, there remains the haunting suspicion that somehow it may. Thousands of British Columbians buy this hope to their bosoms in secret, while scoffing in public. If it did work by some strange miracle, then indeed, the "raptures," which Mr. Aberhart has been predicting out of his Scriptural knowledge, would occur. Also, a number of minor prophets, including this one, would have to go out of the prophetic business and try to get jobs collecting garbage. Also, nothing could prevent Mr. Aberhart from becoming Prime Minister of Canada within a year or two. Keep your eye on Alberta.

APPRECIATION FOR SUPPORT

To the Editor:—I wish to thank all those who have so loyally supported me during the trying times of the last six weeks.

I also wish to state that at the investigation all those sufficiently informed spoke very highly of my efficiency both as a teacher and as a disciplinarian.

GERTUDE M. HAVERCROFT,

"THE COW BY-LAW"

To the Editor:—A few weeks ago I noticed an item in your columns reporting Alderman Hunter as stating that the above by-law is being enforced. If so, why not in Victoria West? The roads and footpaths are in some places simply impassable, especially after dark, to say nothing of every vacant lot in the district. On more than one occasion my children have come home with their shoes in a most shocking state of dirt.

I don't think it is fair that a city employee should have the privilege of carrying on a full-fledged milk ranch in the most thickly-populated part of this district, with a herd of cows. I trust the proper authorities will look into this matter and abate this nuisance.

SILLY SEASON FOR CONVENTIONS

To the Editor:—At this time of year it is to be expected that the human race will be more prone to unreasonable thinking and irresponsible activity than during the colder months.

"Silly Season" and "Midsummer Madness," in the history of the race, come to be recognized as suitable terms for much that is done by—at other times—reasonable human beings at this period.

Would it not be well, therefore, to arrange that future meetings of the provincial convention be called to occur only during the colder months of the year?

The provincial planks, so unanimously adopted at the recent convention, are so obviously unsuitable and irresponsible that this request should be seriously considered by the members of the movement at large, together with total repudiation of said planks.

Most usefully, the work of the last convention should be declared an abortion and discarded as useless. Then call a new convention and re-state the planks.

SMALLPOX AIDED EMPIRE

From The Toronto Daily Star

Did smallpox save Canada for the empire? In one of his interesting contributions to The Canadian Journal of Medicine and Surgery, Mr. Justice Riddell quotes from The Journal of a Vermont medical man an account of the smallpox which ravaged the regiment of 750 men which was raised to act against Canada during the war of independence. Justice Riddell suggests that "had it not been for the smallpox, it is more than probable that the American army would have taken Canada. Canada would then almost certainly have become a state of the Union, not one of the British Commonwealth of Nations as she has."

DIFFERENT PERSONALITIES

From The New York World-Telegram

Glamorous, provocative, forward on stage, Helen Hayes slinks away through the alley after the show, is shy of strangers and inconspicuous on the street. . . . Jocular as Fred Allen is during his comic broadcasts, his is a most troubled face during the little spare time he has. . . . Remember the pictures of Amelia Earhart as she alights from an airplane race? Her hair is tousled, her flying clothes appropriately careless and her demeanor somewhat tomboyish. But away from the airplane, Amelia Earhart becomes Amelia Earhart Putnam, a devoted wife, well groomed and wholly feminine.

To one who knew Jimmy Cagney during his pre-Hollywood days the portrait of him as a tough hombre has always been a private joke. For the jabbing Jimmy, out of celluloid, is one of the gentlest persons among celebrities. His voice is soft, his manner gentlemanly and his smile permanent. . . . On paper, Arthur Thomas Wolfe is the most voluminous writer of this age. Rarely does he bring a manuscript of less than a half million words to a publisher. Yet, in public assembly, Wolfe is the most tongue-tied member of the crowd. He stutters nervously when inveigled into an after-dinner speech.

CHIEF JUSTICE AT 82

From The Canadian Finance Bureau

Sir William Mulock, who has been dubbed the "grand old man of Ontario," a sobriquet which he has well earned and richly deserves, relinquished his duties as Chief Justice of our sister province on Dominion Day. Sir William is ninety-two years old, but still young in spirit, still intellectually vigorous. His long span of years has been full of active and useful service in behalf of his province and his country and now he has decided to take a rest from his judicial labors. To this he is fully entitled. None the less, the bench and bar will miss him; his vacant chair will be hard to fill.

MOTORISTS' FINES

From The Orillia Packet and Times

Some time ago a young fellow convicted of reckless driving which sent another man to the hospital for some weeks and almost cost him his life, got off with a fine of $10 and costs. Count Francois de Lesseps, whose father was one of the first aviators to fly across the English Channel, and whose mother was formerly Miss Grace Mackenzie, daughter of Sir William Mackenzie of Kirkfield, died in the Sudbury Hospital last week, as the result of a motor accident. The driver of the car was found guilty of reckless driving and was fined $10 and costs. Now, in both cases, the accused was either entitled to dismissal on the benefit of the doubt, or the fine for such a serious offence was totally inadequate. By contrast, the fines for minor, and often unconscious, offences, are not only absurd but unjust.

THE WISE COW IN THE FUTURIST PICTURE SHOW

From The London Times

Lord Riversdale told a story of a man who was taken to an exhibition by an artist, who said of a futurist painting: "That is a cow grazing." "Where is the grass?" the man asked. "She's eaten it all," said the artist. "Then where is the cow?" the man asked. The reply was: "You don't think she would be such a fool as to stay there when she had eaten all the grass!"

Letters to the Editor

BEHIND COMMUNIST POLICY

To the Editor:—The difference between the genuine C.C.P. movement and the Communist is not in their aims but their policies for attaining them. The methods of the latter makes one doubt if they really believe in equal opportunity and justice to all; in fact, true democracy. Their policy is to bring the country into a condition to invoke civil war, tactical strikes, to paralyze the industries and to oust as many workers as possible from employment—such was attempted by the lumber industry.

The workers, if they can not be persuaded to vote for a strike, are threatened or trapped into it—unless there is such an overwhelming number who refuse to be bamboozled as to make intimidation impossible.

Many men forced permanently out of their jobs, ruined, have lost faith in the C.C.P. through their failure of the association and their fatal experience. Honest strikes there are; grave injustices to protest against. They are used by the agitators, who to all they can create a deadlock and to paralyze the industry so as to cause it to be closed down if possible.

The worker today in many industries is between Scylla and Charybdis—capitalism and Communism—black-listed by one or the other.

Behind and supporting this Communist policy are men in lucrative jobs, even in receipt of pensions, or with private means, who take the greatest care not to risk losing their own means of livelihood and the agitators who make a good thing out of it.

DEMOCRACY.

WAR AS HANS SEES IT

To the Editor:—War is the agency through which capitalism seeks to prolong its rule and oppression of the rightful owners of the wealth they produce; fascism is their tool. Where fascism has not as yet become supreme, the people have unequivocally affirmed their opposition to war and have taken steps to prevent it. The fascist dictator, openly declared for aggression on weaker nations, e.g., Japan, Germany, Italy, thus averting the immediate internal problems of the class war in their own countries for the time being. Other states affect to be hampered for war, only because capitalism in their countries has exhausted the means for profiteering in constructive and progressive fields of exploitation. Thus the war-mongers retain their supremacy for a little longer.

The rising tide of opposition against the ruling class by the common people (including many of the intellectuals and petty bourgeoisie) is a sure indication that the time has arrived for the advent of the new social order; one in which the struggle for a better life will not be hampered by the desire to gain it at the expense of the weak and oppressed, and where the right to live will not be denied any who are deserving and are willing.

The U.S.S.R. is a living example of what can be accomplished, we have a better opportunity by far than they for a richer life without the necessity of going through what they did, or that which the Spanish people are suffering and will suffer, because of the machinations of their ruling class, in their negation of their own laws and ethics.

TO END UNEMPLOYMENT

To the Editor:—Unemployment can be abolished, whenever we choose, by (a) lavish spending by the rich, (b) lavish spending upon armaments, or (c) lavish spending upon public luxuries or social well-being. Of course B and C demand honorable public finance. The money-circle must be honestly completed. There must be no increase of public debt. There need be no real "inflation," nor any loss of existing savings. No considerable and permanent rise in prices would be justifiable. No private fortune need be diminished, though few, probably, would be greatly increased.

The additional millions, distributed by collective action (and thence poured into the pockets of the taxpayer through increased circulation) must be honestly collected back in taxes. But that would leave all of us richer (to the extent of the armaments or public luxuries) and should leave no one the poorer. The danger to the world today arises, not from any scarcity of the good things of life (the supply of those could easily be increased) but from a dog-in-the-manger policy.

The rich do not spend to the limit; if they did, there would be no unemployed. At the very least (since they have no use for the services of the workers) they should not oppose the utilization of our "surplus productive capacity," that ocean of wasted creative energy, which we call "unemployment"—for the benefit of the whole people. It is time the notion of a "subsistence wage" was banished from the minds and vocabulary of Canadians. In this immensely rich Dominion, poverty and unemployment are entirely unnecessary.

SOCIAL CREDIT CONFUSION

To the Editor:—In The Times of Aug. 1 there appeared an article on "Social Credit," by A. S. Averill. I was amazed at the writer's confused state of mind, also his lack of understanding of the fundamental causes of the problems that face society today.

Your correspondent states the cause of unemployment is the lack of credit through an out-of-date financial system.

Banks and banking institutions are part and parcel of the capitalist system. And ever since the depression started there has been lots of credit in the banks for anyone to borrow, providing he could show his banker he could invest it with a reasonable security. Have not all the public issues been oversubscribed two or three times when put on the market, a sign of plenty of money awaiting a safe investment. Also, has not the production of gold increased every year with banks reducing interest on deposits to the minimum so as to discourage large deposits, as they have no means of investing same at a profit?

Again, when your correspondent gives his definition of Socialism he shows clearly his lack of understanding. For his Socialism is nothing more than State Capitalism, as advocated by so many of our social reformers today and palmed off as Socialism.

Socialism means the socialization of common ownership of the means and instruments of producing and distributing wealth in the interests of society as a whole. Anything short of this is Capitalism.

Social reform, whether of the currency jugglers or all the other various reforms dangled before the workers today, are futile, as Marx said, "another blind alley." And when the workers have gone up all the blind alleys they will then turn to the only solution to their problems—Marxian Socialism.

C. LUFF.

TWO PLANKS

To the Editor:—The finance plank (clause 2) of the C.C.P.'s provincial platform advocates (quoting clause 2 in full) "The adoption of provincial socialized finance."

This clause was amplified as follows: "It is recognized that our provincial government may be thwarted in the fulfillment of any or all of its major planks if its premises are to be dependent upon a financial and credit system controlled by private interests. We believe, therefore, that our provincial government should be prepared to adopt a form of provincial socialized finance, based upon the wealth produced in the province, for the purpose of facilitating an equitable distribution of our commodities and services among all our citizens."

In the 1933 provincial platform, upon which C.C.P. members of the Legislature were elected, the finance clause reads as follows: "Co-operation with the other provinces to obtain a complete socialization of all the financial machinery of the country, banking, currency, credit and insurance, and, if compelled by a situation of provincial emergency, to develop public credit, based on provincial resources."

I will appreciate it if Mr. A. E. Sanders will explain the fundamental differences between these two planks. To me they appear to differ very little but I must admit that my knowledge of economics is much less than Mr. Sanders is.

TO OPEN OUR EYES

To the Editor:—In the paragraph on your editorial page, beginning "Premier Aberhart says, etc.," you say that the Alberta government is "actually borrowing money, without interest and without strings (conditions) for repayment of the loan." This statement is manifestly false.

The Albertan citizen truly makes a loan of his work to his government (which represents 700,000 citizens and 255,000 square miles of territory capable of supporting 15,000,000 persons). His government pays him on Friday and he can buy anything he can find in a large department store, to the amount of his cheque (less one cent on the dollar) the next morning if he is in a hurry. Pretty good! Read your own news item again, August 10, page 1, col. 7.

You give me a mental picture of Mr. Pattullo stamping and gnashing his teeth because he did not first think of this plan whereby a premier can borrow enormous sums "without interest or conditions." As it is, British Columbia, thanks to the stupidity and semi-treason to the citizens of the "old" parties, must still bor-

University School's Highest Award Goes to E. E. Teagle of Calgary

Victoria pupils have won major honors at University School, the oldest and one of the largest private schools in western Canada.

Since the establishment of the Ker Cup, the outstanding school prize, in 1923, there have been five Victoria winners. Four Vancouver pupils have won the award. This year's winner was a Calgary, Alberta, boy, E. E. Teagle. The cup is given annually to the boy standing highest in scholarship, character, leadership and athletics.

After leaving University School, boys have distinguished themselves. Ian M. Drum, son of the late Col. Drum, graduated with very high honors from Royal Military College and is now taking a course in chemical engineering at Queen's. Vivian Gioima won the highest Westinghouse research scholarship award and is now embarked upon an electrical career.

D'Arcy Marsh has achieved journalistic recognition in the east. He is the author of "The Tragedy of Sir Henry Thornton."

A number of recent school graduates are distinguishing themselves in higher educational courses, business and other fields.

The school is more than holding its own in sports. The Vancouver team that met the New Zealand All-Blacks had seven University School old boys on it, four from Vancouver and three Victorians.

IS HEADMASTER

G. H. Scarrett, B.A., M.R.S.T., was appointed headmaster in 1935 after having been with the school since 1919. He was appointed second master in 1925. Trained in England, Mr. Scarrett is a fellow of the Royal Society of Teachers of Great Britain. Close attention is paid to the mental, moral and physical development of the boys. Health is watched closely by the school physician, who gives lectures on personal hygiene and boys' problems. A graduate nurse of long experience with boys is resident matron.

Nearly ten acres of the school grounds are laid out as playing fields, football, tennis courts and cricket pitch. There is also a large gymnasium and white-tiled swimming tank, heated in winter. The school also has a cadet corps and miniature rifle range.

Specializing on individual attention to the pupils by masters, the aim of the school as expressed by Mr. Scarrett is "To develop each boy into the best of which he is capable." Education, according to Mr. Scarrett, is not external, a mere matter of doing and knowing things. It is internal, a matter of being something.

There are two brick residential school buildings—senior, with accommodation for eighty-five boarders and junior, equipped for fifty-five boarders. Day pupils are also taken. The classroom building has eight large, modern classrooms, preparation room and assembly hall. It is on Richmond Road.

The majestic palms known as Washingtonias were discovered about 1850 in the canyons of the San Jacinto Mountains, where some of the palms grew nearly 100 feet tall.

A Victoria citizen who buys food on credit, pays 14 per cent or 15 per cent interest on the day of purchase for the favor of credit, or the storekeeper would go broke. It is only a fair charge. Why how so loud about one per cent?

You try to show that Aberhart is a crook. Is our assessment of workmen's dwellings here in Victoria honest in some parts of British Columbia is assessed at five times the market value, and at a damnably high mill-rate. Of course, your paper would attribute that to the fact that somebody (outside the Liberal Party) was not drowned in a pail of water by his parents the day he was born. Somebody like Aberhart or Bennett.

Apollo Planes At Brentwood

Two Osprey Seaplanes Bring Naval Officers on Visit to Viscount Colville

Fishermen at Brentwood yesterday afternoon witnessed an aerial show when the two Osprey seaplanes carried by H.M.S. Apollo, of the British West Indies station, now at Comox, brought four naval officers on a visit to Viscount Colville of Culross.

The planes landed on the Saanich side of the arm early in the afternoon after circling the house for some time. They left again about 5:30 o'clock.

Taking off in a surprisingly short distance, the machines dived over Viscount Colville's home, barely skimming the tree tops, before heading north.

During the afternoon the officers who had come down on the two planes were seen playing cricket on the tennis court of Viscount Colville's home with tennis balls and baseball bats.

There was a moment of excitement when one of the machines dragged its anchor and started drifting down the bay. Its pilot reached it in a rowboat after it had traveled several hundred yards and taxied it home again.

A Hungarian scientist, working in Hamburg, Germany, has demonstrated that benzol, mixed with water, will produce steam at a temperature so much below ordinary water that Germany could effect a coal saving of $650,000,000 a year in generation of steam.

There are more than twice as many motor vehicles as telephones on United States farms, according to latest census figures.

Mr. Wm. J. Reedy of Chicago, who has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. G. Bjornst, Pemberton Road, for the last two weeks, has left for his home in the east.

After spending the last ten days in Victoria as the guest of the Misses Roberts, Young Street, Mrs. Mary Mackenzie, R.N., of Vancouver, has returned to her home on the mainland.

Miss Myne Baker was hostess at a tea and miscellaneous shower on Saturday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hon. J. W. Fordham Johnson and Mrs. Fordham Johnson are sailing on August 18 from England for Vancouver and will take up residence in their Selkirk Avenue home, at present occupied by Major and Mrs. Austin Taylor.

Ninth Child Born To "Derby" Entrant

Toronto, Aug. 17.—The latest child born to Mr. and Mrs. Gus Graziano, Millar-will "Baby Derby" entries, named Benito Mussolini Graziano today.

Mrs. Graziano has nine children, born since October 31, 1926, when Charles Vance Millar, Toronto lawyer, died and left about $500,000 to the mother who would give birth to the most babies in Toronto in the ten years after his death. Benito is the ninth.

Twins, hoped for by both parents and prophesied by Mrs. Graziano, would have tied her with Mrs. Arthur Timleck and Mrs. John Nagle. As it is, she and Mrs. Grace Bagnato have nine each, but Mrs. Bagnato expects to bring her total to ten any day. "As long as we keep on having boys we'll go right along having children," said Graziano today, and his French-Canadian wife nodded approval from her bed. "Benito is the fourth boy in a row. As soon as we have a girl we'll sign off."

CRAWFORD-WHEATON

An interesting wedding took place on Wednesday evening, August 12, in Collinswood United Church, Vancouver, when Rev. R. N. Matheson officiated at the ceremony that united in marriage Audrey Irene, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Wheaton of Mr. Harold Wilson Crawford of Penfield, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Crawford of Victoria.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a lovely gown of white satin falling from a peplum into a long train. Her bridal veil was of silk Brussels net and she carried a bouquet of deep pink roses and lily of the valley.

Her only attendant was Miss Gladys Duncan who wore a gown of green point d'esprit over tulle with a hat of beige lace and carried a bouquet of mauve sweet peas. Mr. Jack McLean supported the groom while Mr. George Watson, brother of the bride, and Mr. Bob Schwenger acted as ushers. Mr. J. Stewart acted during the signing of the register.

Following the reception at the home of the bride's parents the couple left for the south, the bride donning a light weight wool suit of British tan color with chambray and British tan accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Crawford, parents of the groom, and Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Schwenger, sister and brother-in-law of the groom, came over for the wedding from Victoria.

On returning Mr. and Mrs. Crawford will reside in Penfield, B.C.

Famous War Nurse To Retire

Canadian Press
Toronto, Aug. 17.—Nursing Sister Annie Hartley, matron of Christie Street Hospital, and matron-in-chief of the Department of Penitentiaries and National Health, has retired after twenty-seven years in the nursing service.

She went overseas in 1915 as the matron of No. 4 Canadian General Hospital, the University of Toronto unit. Perhaps more honors have been awarded to her than to any Canadian nurse.

She holds the Florence Nightingale Medal, awarded by the International Red Cross Society at Geneva. King George decorated her with the Royal Red Cross medal and bar for valor at Salonica. Twice during her three and a half years overseas she was mentioned in despatches.

She nursed in the Gallipoli Hospital ship when it lay off the coast to remove the last victims of the campaign. For twenty-two months she was matron of the 2,000-bed hospital at Salonica.

When she returned from overseas in July, 1919, she became matron of the military hospital at Burlington. Fifteen years ago she was appointed matron of Christie Street Hospital. In 1927 she was named matron of all military hospitals in Canada.

In addition to her work at Salonica she has seen service at Shorncliffe, Bealings, England; Naples, in France, and Malta.

Women Outnumber Men in U.S. Cities

Associated Press
Chicago, Aug. 17.—In the "typical American city," Prof. William F. Ogburn said today the women outnumber the men, the per capita tax is $32 a year and one in every ten families takes in roomers.

There were some of the data compiled by the University of Chicago sociologist in an article published today in the journal Public Management.

For every 100 women, his survey showed, there are only ninety-seven men. Six out of every ten persons more than fifteen years old are married. The average family in "average towns" consists of three or four persons, including boarders and relatives.

The average renting family paid $28 a month.

EXCURSION TRIPS BEING ARRANGED

Two excursion trips have been planned from Victoria this week and judging by inquiries both will be well patronized.

The St. Princess Elizabeth has been engaged to take an afternoon and evening cruise among the islands of the lower Gulf on Wednesday. She will leave the Belleville Street piers at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and return at 8 o'clock in the evening.

On Thursday the St. Princess Louise will take an excursion from Victoria to Seattle, leaving the Belleville Street docks at 8.30 o'clock in the morning. Tomorrow the St. Princess Adelaide will come here with a special excursion party from Vancouver.

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHER

Every mother likes to feel that her child is superior to other children, not only in physique, but also in mentality.

When a mother looks at her child and tries to evaluate its qualities, she should remember that both she and her husband gave to the child most of what it has in the way of qualities, and that each of the parents also is responsible for making the most of those that the child actually has.

Thus, heredity, environment, including education, and personal attention of the parents are primarily responsible for making the child what it is.

Children frequently resemble their parents; almost as often they do not, in which case they are likely to resemble someone in the previous ancestry.

The fact that we are the sum of all our ancestors is responsible for different types of individuals in the same family. This is the reason for the appearance of genius in commonplace families, and occasionally of idiots in brilliant families.

Nevertheless, in this as in other matters the majority is inclined to rule, and the more brilliance there is in the ancestry, the more likelihood there is of the appearance of brilliance in the children.

Not long ago, psychologists in California studied the life records of 300 eminent men and women to determine the factors associated with the production of genius.

They paid particular attention to the early behavior of these people, their brightness or commonplace character during adolescence, their energy, their ancestors, and their physical structure.

It was found that the factors concerned in the production of genius are home training and discipline, home interests, education, travel and reading. These revelations were exceedingly encouraging, because they showed the extent to which we can improve upon the qualities with which we begin life.

Among the most eminent men were some who, in childhood, seemed to have intelligence below the highest order. Yet it was found that high intelligence, combined with the greatest possible degree of persistence, is likely to lead to greater achievement than the highest degree of intelligence with less persistence.

People who became great as writers were found to rate lower in persistence and balance, but higher in all social traits and in emotional reaction.

Children, than did the average eminent man. Writers were characterized by imagination, esthetic feeling, and an inclination toward pleasure.

Writers exceeded the average eminent individual in their desire to be leaders, in estimating the value of their own talents, in originality of ideas, in memory, and in keenness of observation.

However, writers were below the average in soundness of common sense, and in the degree to which action and thought are dependent on reason.

Among eminent men, scientists were found to rate high in strength of mind or intellect, and in activity and balance; but the scientists were low in social qualities and in their estimation of themselves.

BRIGADE BAND GIVES CONCERT

Another glorious Sunday afternoon attracted hundreds of Victorians to Beacon Hill Park for the programme of band music presented by the 5th B.C. Coast Brigade Band, directed by Al. Prescott.

Guest soloists for the day were Thomas Kelway, tenor, and George Green, trumpeter. The former sang Gounod's "Lend Me Your Aids" and Handel's "Largo," receiving a splendid reception, while Mr. Green played the beautiful "Lost Chord," by Sullivan.

The band programme included: March, "Here They Come" (Weidt), overture, "The King's Lieutenant" (Till), selection, "The Maid of the Mountains" (Simson), overture, "Hungarian Lustspiel" (Kela Bein), selection, "The Shamrock" (Myddleton), march, "Our Fleet" (Alford).

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Steaming and boiling in a double boiler are the two methods best suited to thorough cooking of a baby's food, which yet preserve the food's delightful flavor. Vegetables may be steamed and cereal cooked over water and, since it is hardly possible to overdo either procedure, these may be considered to be "fool-proof."

Mrs. F. N. wants to know what her five-month-old baby should eat and how the foods should be cooked. "He weighs seventeen and one-half pounds," she writes, "and has two teeth. What kind of vegetables should he have and how do I cook them? What about bananas? How much viosterol should he take, since he gets a half-hour sunbath daily?"

"Right now his formula consists of two-thirds milk and one-third water with corn syrup and milk sugar. He gets one-third of a cup of cereal and the juice of an orange with water and a tablespoon of syrup.

"No matter how I cook the orange it 'sours' on his stomach. Also he has only one bowel movement every other day."

The number of stools is immaterial provided everything else is all right.

THIRTY OUNCES OF MILK

The baby's weight is very large. Your formula, though, is inaccurately figured, for the proportions may be all right but the total amounts may be excessive or insufficient for his needs.

He needs 30 ounces of boiled milk, with one and one-half ounces of sugar (one kind is enough) and water to make five 8-ounce feedings, or four 8-ounce ones (the latter if he gets no night feedings).

To enlarge your present sugar element might increase the number of stools. You must ask your doctor about viosterol dosages.

Vegetables can be peas, beans, carrots or spinach, cut in small portions and steamed and strained, or you may purchase your vegetables in small cans manufactured for baby's use only.

Bananas should be ripe and sieved and may be used as a substitute for cereal and served in the same amounts and at the same meals. The orange juice would not sour on baby's stomach, I imagine, if you would omit the syrup. Just add boiled water and feed one hour before the bottle.

You may have the leaflets, "Feeding From Two to Nine Months" and "Recipes for First Foods," for the usual self-addressed and 3-cent stamped envelope sent with your request for them to Myrtle Meyer Eldred of The Your Baby and Mine department of this newspaper.

Beach Club Girl

By MABEL McELLIOTT

Copyright, 1936, by NEA Service Inc.

BEACH CLUB GIRL

STYLIA RIVERS rules the younger set of Larchmont, fashionable New York suburb, she strikes BOOTS RAEBURN whose family has little money.

One night at the Beach Club Boots is put in an embarrassing situation by HARDY WHITEHORE, one of Stylia's guests, who had been drinking. Stylia maliciously contrives to force Boots' resignation from the Juniors. Humiliated, Boots withdraws from the club. She goes about with RUSSELL, the swimming instructor. Russ falls in love with her and announces he's going away. He begs Boots to stop with him and she asks for time to think it over.

Mrs. Raeburn returns from a visit and Boots, having her mother hear about her resignation from the club. Out for an early morning walk, Boots meets DENIS PENWAY, young author.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XV

Boots swallowed hard. Denis Penway, in old grey flannels with a black-thorn stick in his hand, stood staring at her, frankly embarrassed, frankly at a loss. Boots was the more composed. She crumpled the damp ball that had been a handkerchief in her hand and smiled wanly at him.

"Don't pay any attention to me," she said quickly and lightly. "I've got the early morning blues. One of my Irish ancestors is stalking me today. We all like a good cry, you know."

Surprisingly, the young man sat down beside her, stretching his long legs out on the cobblestoned grass, stared and stared with globules of dew.

"Cry away," he said briefly. "I have a good shoulder."

Boots put her handkerchief resolutely away in the pocket of her white woolly sweater and smiled again.

"Oh, the shower's over," she told him. "It was nothing."

If this handsome, indolent young man thought she was going to tell him her troubles he was vastly mistaken. Probably he would try to use her for—what did writers call it?—copy. He was going to be disappointed if that was his aim.

She threw him a side glance. How black, how absurdly long and sweeping his lashes were, over eyes of dark, haunting blue! And how extraordinarily tall he was. If he weren't so obviously self-satisfied and conceded she might have liked him a little. As it was she put on her usual mask of casual interest.

"I thought you'd gone back to California," she said by way of making conversation.

He drew a pattern on the wet earth with the stick. "Presently," he drawled.

Boots flushed. If he thought she was interested—if he only remotely knew how unimportant his coming and goings were to her!—she would scramble to her feet, feeling she hated this handsome, well-dressed young man who was so definitely certain of himself and his place in the world.

He put out a lean brown hand to detain her. Even through her annoyance she was conscious of the strength of those warm brown fingers with their well-cared-for nails, their look of leashed power.

"Ah, don't go," he said, on a note of penitence. "There I was, thinking you'd talk to me for a minute. You're forever on the wing."

"Am I?" Boots wanted to know, arrested by this view of her.

"Yes. You're always scrambling in or out of a car or rushing to swim or something," he complained in his agreeable deep voice. "I stopped by to ask you to come and have tea with me the other day. You were out—the beach or some place, the colored woman said."

Linda had never told her. Not that it mattered. . . . So he had "stopped by," had he?

Suddenly Boots, obsessed by his friendliness, his obvious desire to please, was conscious of a desire to confide in him. He was the perfect confidant, a man of the world, sophisticated, traveled, tolerant. . . .

No, she couldn't do that. She dared tell him or anyone! Stated baldly, it sounded too fantastic.

"There's a man I know. . . . he hasn't any money or any background or education. But I'm in love with him. He wants me to marry him, live a sort of gypsy life. At home I'm at a standstill. I'm persona non grata with the younger crowd, right now. I'm unhappy. I want to begin to live. I'm terrible to be young and bottled up. . . . What shall I do?"

Ah, she knew what he would say, what any intelligent, dispassionate person would say. Wait—carve out some sort of career for yourself—be brave, be patient. Life won't pass you by!

It was easy to say that—easy to counsel patience, courage. Meanwhile Russ waited, with his dogged look of devotion, his calm, flattering need of her. Boots felt that every girl blossoming into rosy womanhood feels—the urgent need of being wanted. Ignorant of the forces working within her, she was conscious only of a great desire to do things, to be all that was lovely and desirable, adequate in any situation, however difficult.

She could, she thought, have been a pioneer woman, gallant in danger, resourceful in difficulties. Why, her own great grandmother, at her age, had been married for two years—hadn't she a child? As it was, everyone treated her like a child, still. She was told to run away and play when she spoke of anything more serious than a society tea. It was humiliating, maddening. Russ would free her from that sort of thing. All this raced through her mind as she watched the lean brown hand of Denis Penway reaching for a cigarette in the pocket of his flannel coat.

He looked up at her, a keen, observant glance. "Don't want to tell me, eh?"

"No," she stammered, all confusion. "I—I don't think so." She looked away, struck by some flash of insight in those narrow dark blue eyes.

Employees Hold Picnic in Park

The first annual picnic of the Oak Bay Municipal Employees' Association was held on Saturday at Mount Fairmount Park, where a programme of sports and other activities was staged.

After the sports the entire attendance took part in a picnic luncheon at which prizes were distributed by Mrs. R. Taylor, wife of Reeve Taylor, after the latter made a short address.

Reeve Taylor voiced appreciation of loyal services of the municipal staff, who, he said, served not only members of the council but the citizens of the municipality.

He expressed satisfaction that some of the oldest employees of the municipality were present. He hoped the co-operative spirit which existed between the council and the departments would always continue.

Mrs. Taylor was presented with a beautiful bouquet after she finished presenting the prizes.

Members of inside and outside staffs attended the outing and most of the councillors visited the gathering during the day.

Jesse Owens Suspended By A.A.U. For Taking "Run-out"

Negro Star Cuts Tour; Considers Many U.S. Offers

Triple Olympic Track Winner Charges Officials With Being Unfair

CANTOR MAKES $40,000 OFFER

Berlin, Aug. 17.—Charged with taking an unauthorized "run out" on a scheduled trip to Sweden with a team of United States track and field stars, Jesse Owens, Ohio state's negro triple Olympic winner, was suspended yesterday by the Amateur Athletic Union.

At the same time there were indications the negro, with the approval of his coach, Larry Snyder, already had decided to turn professional and was returning home suddenly for the specific purpose of considering commercial inducements.

American officials including Avery Brundage, president of the American Olympic committee, and Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union, took prompt action at a conference held in the Olympic stadium yesterday afternoon after learning Owens and Snyder suddenly had cancelled reservations for flying to Stockholm with the squad which left London yesterday morning.

Owens and his coach arranged, instead, to sail for home on the Queen Mary Wednesday. Ferris telephoned to Snyder, advising him of the decision disbaring the outstanding Olympic winner after failing to persuade them to change their minds and go through with an agreement to participate in a series of six meets in Sweden and Norway.

Owens said he hadn't decided on any offers but indicated completing negotiations would be one of his first jobs when he reaches New York. Among the more attractive offers received is one from Eddie Cantor, the comedian, of $40,000 for ten weeks of Owens' time.

"This track business is becoming one of the greatest racketeers in the world," Jesse said. "It doesn't mean a darn thing to us athletes. The A.A.U. gets the money. It gets all the money collected in the United States and then comes over to Europe and takes half the proceeds."

The suspension brought from his Ohio State coach the charge that the United States Amateur Union is shipping Olympic athletes around in barnstorming hours prompted by "greed" for money.

"Down with Owens, the A.A.U. says, because he refuses to help them swell their coffers," exclaimed Snyder. "There was no need for this suspension except to save the face of the A.A.U. Instead his face will have to be entirely rebuilt."

THREE KILLED IN ACCIDENTS

Seattle, Aug. 17.—Three persons were killed in automobile accidents in Washington State over the week-end, but the fatality figure was the smallest for any week-end since late June.

Two persons were killed near Mount Vernon on the Pacific Highway in a head-on collision between an automobile carrying four Ohio school teachers and one driven by Harold Groh of Vancouver, B.C.

The dead are: Miss Freda Chamberlain, thirty-four, East Palestine, O. Harold Groh, twenty-two, Vancouver, B.C.

State police said Groh, with two passengers, turned his automobile into the centre of the highway to pass a parked automobile and crashed into the teacher's automobile. The other passengers were injured, none seriously.

Marysville, twenty-seven, was killed when an automobile in which he was riding near Everett locked bumpers with another driven by Miss Sylvia White, New Westminster, B.C.

Where Do Men Look For Wives?

Says Not In the Kitchens Nowadays

THE OTHER DAY a mother and her daughter, who had just graduated from college, were discussing what the girl should do next. The mother thought that the girl should prepare herself for marriage, which was evidently her predestined career, by learning how to cook, market and run a house on a budget.

But this plan the girl flatly vetoed. "No," she said, "What I want is to have lots of pretty clothes, go to the best beauty shops, improve my dancing, go places and do things and have plenty of parties."

"But that won't fit you to make a good wife," protested the mother. "I'll get me a husband, though," replied the girl. And she added: "The girls who get their hands held are those who have their nails painted red, not the ones who have got blisters on their fingers baking bread. Men don't look for their wives in the kitchen."

As I listened to this conversation, I thought that, indeed, out of the mouths of babes and sucklings cometh wisdom. For it is true that men do not choose their wives for their good qualities, but for their looks and their style and their clothes, and a permanent wave and a pink chiffon dress will go farther toward getting a girl a husband than the possession of all of the domestic virtues. Gone are the days when men hunted out the hidden violet to pin upon their breasts. Now it takes a brazen sunflower that hits a man in the eye to make him notice her.

Men are always asking what has become of the old-fashioned girl who was Mother's little helper, who made her own clothes and trimmed her own hair; who was content to spend her evenings at home instead of running around to night clubs, and who could go into the kitchen and turn out a meal that would make a French chef pale with envy.

Well, there are still plenty of her. She hasn't joined the Dodo and the other extinct species of flora and fauna. She is with us yet, but she is sitting at home with papa and mamma or evenings reading an improving book for company, while her showy sisters are stepping out with their boy friends for a good time. And she is just as much sequestered from masculine society as if she were in a convent, or stranded in some Adamless Eden. For apparently it never occurs to the astute masculine brain to hunt for the domestic girl at her own fireside, or to penetrate her disguise when they meet her on the street or in the offices.

It would be quite all right for men to marry Miss America or some one who looked like a Daily Hint from Paris without considering her other qualifications, if any, for making a desirable life partner if appearance was all they desired in a wife. Unfortunately, this is not the case, and so matter is a thrifty manager and a good housekeeper and who can make a comfortable home.

Feasting his eyes upon a living picture is doubtless a treat for a husband, but it is slim diet for a hungry man who craves roast beef and potatoes, and if his wife cooks these in a way that superinduces chronic dyspepsia, he is mighty likely to lose his interest in beauty. Also, it is have to pay for them, and then after they are married they generally settle down and prefer a wife who is a good fireside companion to one who knows the newest dancing step and wants to show it off.

So, then, we have this curious phenomenon—that it takes one line of attractions for a girl to get a husband and an entirely different line to hold it is no wonder that so many women make a failure of it. The marvel of it is that so many have the dexterity and skill to pull off the lightning-change act.

For it is true that the girl must bait her hook with good looks, natural or synthetic, with pretty clothes, with gaiety and frivolity in order to catch a husband, and then as soon as she is married, if she keeps him, she must roll up her sleeves and go to work and make bread like Mother used to make and pinch pennies and wear basement bargains, and generally turn from a butterfly into a grub. And a lot of girls do it.

SALE OF WORK Uncle Wiggily's Thunderstorm HELD AT SOOKE

By HOWARD E. GARIS

Sooke, Aug. 17.—The women's auxiliary of Holy Trinity Church held a sale of work and home-cooking in the Sooke Community Hall on Friday evening. The sale was opened by the president, Mrs. A. Austin, and proved a success financially.

Vocal solos were rendered by Mrs. P. Wadams and Mrs. A. J. Syrett, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Robert Acreman. Master B. Arden or Shirley entertained with novelty musical numbers.

Mrs. W. Locke, Mrs. A. Constant and Mrs. Thomson had charge of the home-cooking and candy stall while Mrs. G. Throp, Mrs. A. Austin and Mrs. H. Black took care of the needlework. Tea was served by Mrs. J. P. Noury and Mrs. S. Dever. Mrs. H. F. McBride and Mrs. C. H. McMillan had charge of the guessing competitions and the tombola and Miss Doris Thomson took care of the children's bran tub.

The prizewinners were as follows: Cake, Rev. H. M. Bolton; cake, Mrs. G. Throp and Mrs. E. Arden; blanket, T. Hall; rug, J. Cobb; sweater, Mrs. A. Austin.

A garden party in aid of the Catholic Mission Church will be held on J. Drennan's property on Wednesday afternoon.

The women's auxiliary to the Sooke branch of the Canadian Legion will hold a card party of auction bridge and progressive five hundred in the Sooke Community Hall on Saturday evening.

Lightning can hurt. "Can the lightning?" asked the new little rabbit boy taking both ears out from beneath his mother's apron.

"Well, yes, when lightning strikes it does damage and may hurt," said Uncle Wiggily. "That's why it is wise to come in the house when there's a thunder storm. But you are safer out in a tree. Lightning often strikes high things like trees."

Philly and the other rabbit children were so eager to hear Uncle Wiggily tell about the thunder storm they forgot to be frightened when the loud crashes sounded or the bright flashes came from the dark rain clouds making it seem as if all the electric lights were turned on at once and then suddenly shut off.

Well, there goes somebody else that's afraid of thunder. Philly pointing across the road toward the old mill where he lived said Uncle Wiggily, "Some one caught in the storm?"

"It's a big named one, long whiskers and a very little tail," said Philly. "Oh, it's the Bob Cat. Yes, he's afraid of thunder, that's why he runs," said Uncle Wiggily. "I suppose he was sneaking around to catch the cat and the thunder has sent him running to his den. I'm glad of it."

STORM IS OVER

Soon the storm was over and the rabbit children ran out to play and wade in the mud puddles. Uncle Wiggily sat down to read the paper and soon was able to go to bed.

The next day Uncle Wiggily had a funny adventure.

"I'll hide under the freight platform," said Mr. Longears. "The Bob Cat won't see me there."

But the Bob Cat saw the rabbit hiding and started under the platform after him. Now it happened there were a lot of empty barrels on the freight platform and some men were rolling them away to be taken away. And just as the Bob Cat was scrambling under the platform to get Uncle Wiggily, the railroad men rolled the empty barrels over his head. They made a booming, rattling, rumbling sound, on the wooden platform.

"Oh, dear me! Another thunder storm!" mewed the Bob Cat. "I'll get you another time, Uncle Wiggily! I don't like thunder!" So the silly Bob Cat ran away home from the make believe barrel thunder storm and Uncle Wiggily hopped safely home to his bungalow.

And if you find any pictures in the lady's pocketbook that you can show to the rag dealer, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's grasshopper race.

Yukon Celebrates Rush Anniversary

Gay Scenes Are Enacted at Dawson as Hectic Days of '98 Are Recalled By Residents and Pioneers

Dawson, Y.T., Aug. 17.—The men who packed into the Klondike nearly half a century ago returned today from the hinterland to the city they knew as rows of shacks and tents in the glaring rush for gold in '98.

Sourdoughs from Alaska also came back to the city many of them left when it was a place to weigh-in dust or to stake it on the turn of a card, or in the blazing dance halls and theatres of the time.

But those who came back for the fortieth anniversary of the Klondike rush today saw a modern city of neat little frame buildings. Most of the saloons, dance halls and theatres of '98 are gone. They went when the rush subsided and before lumbering machinery moved onto the gold-flecked streams, scooping out the river beds and sending sourdoughs and chieftains into new territory.

White-haired pioneers and newcomers of the Klondike, the sub-arctic adventure that followed the discovery of the first flock of yellow metal in Klondike by George Carmack on August 17, 1896.

EARLY PIONEERS

Among those who were here was Frank Bateau of Fairbanks, Alaska, who came to the Yukon in 1896, two years before the stampede began.

More than eighty years old, the one-time blacksmith still is vigorous. Bateau made quite a name for himself sharpening and tempering picks for miners throughout the country. Also here was Madam Emilie Tremblay, first white woman to cross Chilcotin Pass in 1894. She came then as a bride and walked the distance from the headwaters of Lynn Canal to Lake Bennett, where a home-made boat took her to Millier Glacier, where her husband was panning gold.

But there were lots of pioneer white women who were not here, and few, if any, knew where they were. As the old sourdoughs looked back over two decades they wondered what had become of Cigarette Lisa, Diamond Tooth, Gertrude, the Oatmeal Sisters, Dogface Lamore and Gold Dust Drummond, who played faro or black-jack with limits when they were.

Isaac Nallette, Joe Turgen, Joseph Edmet and Max Lauderline, who came to Yukon between 1894 and 1898 were among the most prominent pioneers here.

The anniversary celebrations will conclude Wednesday, when early day scenes will be re-enacted in the modelled dance halls. But while the games will be the same that were played in '98 and the stakes will be as high, fake money will take the place of the gold dust that changed hands then.

Mrs. George Black, member of Parliament for the Yukon, and a pioneer of the north country, will take part in the celebrations, addressing the visiting prospectors.

SHIP FIRES ARE STUDIED

All U.S. Passenger Ships in Future Expected to Be Fire-proof

Canadian Press

New York, Aug. 17.—Scientists aboard a steamer anchored in the James River, near Norfolk, Va., expect to complete this week an answer to the sailor's most dreaded problem—fire.

Marine experts said today that from the smoke-blackened cabins of the S. Nantasket, the test ship, will emerge a new era of marine construction by which the dangers of fire at sea virtually may be eliminated.

It was indicated all passenger-carrying ships built in the United States in the future would be completely fireproof.

For seven months the experts have been setting fire to the interiors of specially constructed cabins aboard the Nantasket, the marine making careful notes of just what happened.

The work is being done by the United States Senate subcommittee on fireproof construction headed by George G. Sharp of New York, naval architect.

The committee came into being as the result of the burning of the S. Morro Castle in September, 1934, with the loss of 121 lives.

NEW LIGHT IS ESTABLISHED

Erected on Solander Island, Off West Coast; Light Changed at William Head

A new light has been established on Solander Island, off the west coast of Vancouver Island, according to an official notice to mariners received in Victoria, B.C., today.

The light is on the highest point of the island, at an elevation of 580 feet and is flashing white electric light, automatically flashed at short intervals. Its structure is an iron tripod with a lantern on top. The light is unwatched.

The Solander Island gas and white buoy, formerly maintained about a quarter of a mile westward of the island, has been discontinued.

Another light has been established on Grief Point, Malaspina Strait, showing two seconds light and two seconds dark. This light is also unwatched.

The flashing white light, formerly maintained on the extremity of the breakwater southeast of Powell River, in Malaspina Strait, has been discontinued.

The flashing white acetylene light at William Head has been replaced by an occulting white electric light, showing two seconds light and two seconds dark. This light is also unwatched.

The fixed white oil lights now shown from each masthead of the Sandheads Lightship, off the mouth of the Fraser River, will be discontinued and replaced by a fixed white light shown from a cluster of electric lamps encircling the head of the mainmast.

WILL REVIVE OLD INDUSTRY

U.S. Government to Give Licenses That Will Restore Whaling Trade

Washington, Aug. 17.—Any day now the United States Government will launch a new programme to revive an old and romantic industry, whaling.

"It is hoped," said John R. Gardner, special assistant to the commissioner of Fisheries, "that this ancient and honorable business can soon be restored to something of its old glory."

Commerce and treasury representatives are redrafting a few final regulations and officials hope within sixty days to issue the first United States whaling license.

Through laws passed by the last Congress the much-hunted right whale has been given the immunity of a sacred cow, and its killers can be imprisoned for six months and fined $10,000.

It is also unlawful to kill sucking whales, or females accompanied by sucklings.

The law says harpooners cannot kill a sulphurbottom, under fifty feet, a finback under fifty and a humpback under thirty-five, yet even experienced gunners have a tough time guessing the whale's length when he blows.
